But work in all we may say that material progress has kept pace with social and educational advancement. The result of Oklahoma is that at home and abroad, and wherever three years ago our name was heard as a subject, all horror warrants of Oklahoma are now a thing of the past.

When I became governor what more was left of the past? The result of Oklahoma is that at home and abroad, and wherever three years ago our name was heard as a subject, all horror warrants of Oklahoma are now a thing of the past.

The people I have undertaken, will not be accomplished for the people of Oklahoma—not in this, but in future years. No amount of criticism to deter me from my purpose, or to stay the progress of righteousness in government. The people of Oklahoma have set their faces with determination toward the right. There may be times of discouragement, there may be seasons of gloom, there may be hours of faltering, but in the end the power and determination of the people of this state will win.
